Mark Anderson is a respected civic leader and business professional with a deep commitment to the Cache Valley community. With decades of leadership in local government and economic development, he brings a collaborative and forward-thinking approach to every role he takes on.

An alumnus of Utah State University with multiple degrees, Mark values education, service, and community. Whether mentoring others, volunteering locally, or spending time with family, he leads with integrity, experience and an unwavering commitment to improving the lives of those around him.

Serving on Logan City Council for the last six years and as Mayor of Logan City in 2026 has provided Mark with unique knowledge and understanding about Logan City and invaluable experience with city governance.

Mark has also served on the Cache Water District Board for the last 4 years giving him the experience and knowledge necessary to help Cache Valley and Logan specifically move forward with the water utilization and conservation plans. We need to be good stewards of this valuable resource. Mark was instrumental in establishing a drought tolerant turf replacement program offered by the Cache Water District that has made an impact on over 40 acres of turfgrass in Cache Valley.
